

Music and Expression

About the Artist

I am a singer-songwriter and self-taught guitarist with a deep passion for composing original music and exploring the emotional power of sound. My creative journey is rooted in storytelling through melodies, lyrics, and live performances. As an aspiring independent artist, I aim to create music that feels personal, expressive, and deeply connected to people's experiences.

Over the years, I have performed at Lucknow's Farmers Market and several cafés across the city, where I especially enjoy sharing my own compositions with live audiences. Performing original music allows me to create intimate and meaningful spaces of connection through sound and storytelling.

Alongside contemporary music practice, I have recently begun formal training in Indian Classical Music at Bhatkhande Sanskriti Vishwavidyalaya. This learning experience is helping me deepen my understanding of musical structure, voice, rhythm, and artistic discipline while expanding my creative possibilities as a composer and performer.

My work combines experimentation, emotional expression, and collaborative creativity, with a strong belief that music can become a space for dialogue, imagination, and collective participation.
